Thank you for supporting our Spring/Summer Fundraiser this year with a fabulously fun night of BINGO in our new home. Since our first BE COOL party in 2002 to raise funds for air-conditioning in our original Wynwood warehouse, Locust Projects' unique annual fundraisers have been fun, but also provided essential support sustaining our programs and have long been known for connecting artists and their work with collectors and new audiences.

We are immensely grateful to the artists who have generously donated to our fundraisers over the years, they have directly supported our artist-centric mission to provide artists at all career stages with opportunities to create ambitious and experimental new work and access to resources to empower their careers. We are humbled by their support of Locust Projects' role in Miami's arts eco-system and the vital need for giving artists the space, time and resources to create and present ambitious, experimental new work in the context of what has evolved into a nationally-recognized alternative art space. We launched the first BINGO BASH in October 2020 as an online alternative to our past Smash & Grab fundraiser inspired by a generous gift of works of art from the collection of Martin Z. Marguiles who similarly supported a number of nonprofits in Miami and beyond during the pandemic.

We are returning to the BINGO BASH format this year as our first in-person spring fundraiser since 2019 with help from the INNOVATORS, Locust Projects' newest network connecting over a passion for the latest in art and ideas. Tonight you will have chances to win wonderful works of art during rounds of BINGO led by guest MCs/Callers and DJs ADORA and Teddy Behr, as well as raffle and trivia prizes. BINGO BASH is also a disco-era themed BASH with good food, drinks and disco beats and hopefully, your boogie nights best attire.

LUCKY YOU every BINGO BASH ticket holder is ALREADY A WINNER!! - you will receive a beautiful edition by Miami-based artist Cristina Lei Rodriguez related to her 2021 commissioned project at Locust Projects.

Warmest thanks to the generosity of past exhibiting artists Leo Castañeda, Jen Clay, Rafael Domenech, Adler Guerrier, Pepe Mar, and Christina Pettersson for donating wonderful works of art to play for. We also have Locust Projects editions and surprise donations from private collectors, local and international art experiences -approximately 30 "prizes." All of you have come together for a night of fun and the chance to go home with a work of art (maybe more) by one of the incredible artists we are lucky to have in our community. Know that each of the works strongly relates to Miami's contemporary culture and Locust's history--we can't wait to introduce them to you.

By introducing works of art to existing and new collectors and offering art-centric experiences as part of our BINGO BASH we hope to sustain the informal and fun environment of past fundraisers past to promote learning about new artists, as well as aspects of collecting and its integration to daily life. For each winner, this is just the beginning of a new conversation to be explored, whether with an artist's practice or a new experience that expands one's knowledge of the inner workings of the art world.

Thank you all again for participating and being part of the Locust Projects family of supporters who help to MAKE ART HAPPEN. Bingo Bash supports Locust Projects as an incubator of new art and ideas, artists with opportunities to dream big and experiment as they realize ambitious new work, providing free access to exhibitions and programming, including Locust Art Builders, summer art intensives for teens, LegalARTLink, our pro bono legal services for artists, WaveMaker incubator grants to local artists, and our robust calendar of conversations on contemporary art and curatorial practice.

We are so grateful for you and wish you luck tonight!

Warmest,

Lorie Mertes | Executive Director

10 x 15 unframed; 11 x 16 framed

Open Edition

$125 unframed; $325 framed

ABOUT THE EDITION

Cristina Lei Rodriguez' Staging a Florida Sunset (10/15/20, 12:06 pm), 2021 was originally produced as a large photo mural on the exterior windows at Locust Projects in conjunction with the group exhibition a landscape longed for: the garden as disturbance on view at Locust Projects November 20, 2021 – February 5, 2022.

ALL BINGO TICKET HOLDERS RECEIVE ONE ARTIST EDITION B CRISTINA LEI RODRIGUE PICK OURS UP ON THE WAY OUT

Created by arranging exotic flowers and South Florida foliage on a scanner, Rodriguez leaves the scanner lid open to record the changing natural light at sunrise, while also documenting the vitality of the plant's life. The final high-resolution scan magnifies the flora's details, while creating abstraction and digital interruptions. The studio process marries technology with the natural world while furthering the tension between what is artificial and authentic.

A landscape longed for: the garden as disturbance was guest curated by Adler Guerrier and Laura Novoa featuring Andrea Bowers, Sandi Haber Fifield, David Hartt, Jim Hodges, Ebony G. Patterson, and Onajide Shabaka and newly commissioned works by Ema Ri and Cristina Lei Rodriguez who created two large-scale photo murals for the exhibition.

The exhibition explored the motif of the garden as used by artists in its relation to the cultivation and expression of beauty and knowledge. The works in the exhibition function around images and objects connected to and derived from the study of plants, prompting a reimagining and reinterpretation of the garden as a site for the lyrical arrangement of forms.

ABOUT THE ARTIST

Cristina Lei Rodriguez (1974) lives and works in Miami, FL. She received her BA from Middlebury College in 1996, and MFA from California College of Art in 2002. The objects Rodriguez creates take many forms, but all are made from common materials that are given a new intangible life. Her work is organic and minimalist, yet pristinely finished; echoing a tension between the natural and the artificial.

Her art has been exhibited internationally and nationally at museums, institutions and galleries such as the Serpentine Gallery (London), Brooklyn Academy of Music (New York), Galerie Emmanuel Perrotin (Paris, Miami), Team Gallery and Deitch Projects (both New York). Rodriguez's work is included in the permanent collections of The Metropolitan Museum of Art (New York), Astrup Fearnley Museum of Modern Art (Oslo), Perez Art Museum Miami, The Bass (Miami), Boca Raton Museum of Art, NSU Museum Ft. Lauderdale, and the Patricia and Phillip Frost Art Museum (Miami). In 2018, the artist published her first monograph "Act Natural: A Retrospective of Work 2003- 2018" with TRA Publishing. Rodriguez has also completed several permanent public artworks in Florida and is currently working on a large scale tile mural for Art in Public Places Miami. Her work has been reviewed by Modern Painters, The New York Times, Financial Times, Wallpaper, The New Yorker and Arte al Día International

The background is a solid pink color. It features a circular arrangement of white, four-pointed stars with rounded corners, resembling a constellation or a decorative border. There are approximately 15 stars in total, spaced evenly around the perimeter. Additionally, there are several faint, concentric white circles centered on the page, creating a subtle radial pattern.

Matthew Brannon

Switching Positions, 2006

Letterpress print, edition of 10

31 x 39 inches

$3000 framed, unsigned

ABOUT THE EDITION

One of the first Locust Projects' editions, this print was produced in 2006 in conjunction with Brannon's wall mural on the façade of Locust's original Wynwood location also in 2006.

This image is part of Brannon's ongoing series of public art at the time and similar to a large scale vinyl work in MoMA's permanent collection, The Never that Lasts Forever 2004, which was included in the group exhibition at MoMA titled "Multiplex: Directions in Art, 1970-Now" in 2007.

“The knives are hopefully well balanced and both suggest that they are both flying through the air but they are somehow resting upon each other and reference slightly the idea of a mobile or a classic modernist public sculpture. The precariousness of the arrangement certainly part of it that the knives imply danger. In fact these are very domestic utensils... the design itself admittedly has a certain Crate and Barrel look to it, which is intentional as well. I made this work very simply by looking at kitchen knives and doing sketches and then what I do is I draw a very simple vector-based computer program and spend a long time collaging it to get this relation of the knives.”

- Matthew Brannon, audio interview for MoMA

ABOUT THE ARTIST

Matthew Brannon (b. 1971, Anchorage, Alaska) has long been recognized not only for his wit and literary sensibility, but also for the precision with which he approaches his chosen mediums. He is perhaps best known for his radical approach to printmaking, which, contrary to traditional usage, frequently involves the elaborate production of unique artworks. Brannon has been the subject of solo exhibitions at the Marino Marini Museum, Florence (2013); Portikus, Frankfurt (2012); Museum M, Leuven, Belgium (2010); Whitney Museum of American Art at Altria, New York (2007); and Art Gallery of York University, Toronto (2007).

Jen Clay

Yellow Room, 2019

Hand tufted rug, wall hanging, yarn and felt

45.5 x 52 inches

Made for Welcome to You and Me, hung at art museum installation

ABOUT THE EDITION

Yellow Room was inspired by fictional stories that describe the lure of madness with a connection to the color yellow, such as The Yellow Wallpaper by Charlotte Perkins Gilman 1892, and The King in Yellow, 1895, by Robert Chambers.

ABOUT THE ARTIST

Jen Clay is a multimedia artist based in South Florida, She creates textiles and animations for performance and video works and installations. She received her Masters in Fine Arts in sculpture from the University of Florida while also studying costume design and behavior analysis.

Clay researches encounters with the unknown which includes horror and science fiction movies and television shows, H.P. Lovecraft stories of cosmic madness, and actual accounts of hallucinations and supernatural sightings. This research informs her work from the performative sculptures and scene choices in video works to narrators speaking directly to the viewer. Clay's practice includes claymation and stop motion animation and sewing wearable works to best depict otherness, the Other, the uncanny and the inhuman. A sense of childhood friendliness is seen in all of her work such as claymation with bright colors or the softness of sewn wearable works. This friendliness is meant to create an atmosphere of safety that is subverted through fast transitions to visceral hidden insides of the characters, the narrator's use of double entendre, and during performance when the character gets dangerously obsessed with the audience.

Previously she was included in the Off Site Performance Series program of the Girls' Club Collection to create a site specific performance. She has shown at the SuperFine Fair during Miami Basel with a micro theatre immersive installation that debuted Episode a 20 min short video work. Clay was voted " Best Emerging Artist" for 2016 by the New Times of Broward and Palm Beach. In 2015 her short film, Schools ,was accepted into Visionaria in Milan, Italy. In 2018 Clay had a Solo exhibit at Practice gallery in Philadelphia and a installation and interactive room at the Art and Culture Center of Hollywood.

Rafael Domenech

assembling beneath a desire for sabotage, 2023

Laser cut print on arches paper

30 x 22 inches

Edition of 150 , each work is unique

Commissioned by Locust Projects

ABOUT THE EDITION

Rafael Domenech designed this unique print edition as a gift to all attendees to Locust Project's 25th Anniversary Benefit Dinner on February 25th, 2023. The dinner took place within Domenech's exhibition, assembling beneath a desire for sabotage, a massive architectural environment that serves as the inaugural exhibition in Locust Projects' new space in Little River.

The print, which bears the same title as the exhibition, was produced from six different prints made from photographs from the artist's Miami archive, which have been digitally distorted. The artist laser-cut incisions into each of the prints, removed, swapped, and re-assembled the cuts into different prints. This process creates multiple unique editions out of the different combinations of the incisions. Produced exclusively for Locust Projects.

ABOUT THE ARTIST

Rafael Domenech (b. 1989, Havana; lives between New York, NY and Miami, FL) is an interdisciplinary artist and educator exploring notions of architecture and urban design, public gathering spaces, and publishing methodologies.

He refers to his works as "publications," and they take the form of pavilions, installations, and public programs, as well as experimental publications.

Domenech's spatial interventions intersect publishing methodologies such as cutting, redacting, revising, and circulation as research tactics to amplify his interest in the exhibition model as an active machine for production rather than a repository space.

Recent exhibitions include: the 58th Carnegie International, Carnegie Museum of Art, Pittsburgh; The Institute for Contemporary Art at Virginia Commonwealth University, Richmond; Passerelle centre d'art contemporain, Brest, France; Museum of Art and Design (MOAD), Miami.

His work has been exhibited at SculptureCenter, New York; Socrates Sculpture Park, Long Island City; LIST Center, MIT, Cambridge; The Bass Museum, Miami Beach; Storefront for Art and Architecture, New York; Phillip and Patricia Frost Art Museum, Miami; Bronx Museum of the Arts, among others. He holds an MFA from Columbia University. In 2015, he received his BFA from New World School of the Arts and in 2009 received a BA from the Academia Nacional de Bellas Artes "San Alejandro" in Cuba.

Rafael Domenech & Ernesto Oroza

$5400

ABOUT THE EDITION

These works were originally created for the 2021 exhibition, Hialeah Eléctrica–Metavector, at The Bass, Miami Beach for the artists' first joint museum exhibition. For the show they constructed a site-specific installation that was both architectural and sculptural and functioned on three different levels: as an artistic project, an index and an archive.

They used Computer Numerical Control (CNC) technology, the artists reworked quotidian elements like vinyl and drywall (often found or repurposed), along with photos, newspaper, and typographical ephemera from their archive as the material vocabulary that constructed their visual investigations.

They merged their shared interests and explorations into architecture, urban planning, modes of material production and adaptive construction, as well as mutual histories as Cuban émigrés to Miami, Domenech and Oroza fused references to the South Florida city of Hialeah and Japanese architect Arata Isozaki (the architect behind the museum's 2001 expansion project and 2017 transformation) as case-studies, sources for production and conceptual materials for the objects and structures in their exhibition.

ABOUT THE ARTISTS

Rafael Domenech was born in Havana, Cuba in 1989. He received a BA with a specialization in sculpture from the Academia Nacional de Bellas Artes San Alejandro, Havana Cuba and recently graduated from New World School of the Arts. Domenech's work consists of sculptures, paintings, and drawings, and his solo exhibitions include Artxpace projects in Palm Beach (2011); Armory Art Center; West Palm Beach (2010); Galeria Casa-Museo Oswaldo Guayasamin, Havana, Cuba (2009). His work has also been included in a number of group shows at the Contemporary Art Center Wilfredo Lam, Havana City, Cuba (2011); Rabbit Gallery, Fort Lauderdale (2011); Palm Beach International Art Fair, West Palm Beach (2011).

Ernesto Oroza's practice channels the tradition of Radical Architecture into his own analytical employment of contemporary object typologies and productive forces. In lieu of functioning within the realm of manufacturing, he produces and distributes speculative models and research through various publication methods, exhibitions, collaborative practices, documentaries, and unorthodox forays into more conventional modes of architecture, interior and object design. Oroza's work has been presented at the Groninger Museum, The Netherlands; LABoral Centro de Arte y Creación Industrial, Spain; Museum of Modern Art, New York; Montreal Museum of Fine Arts; Museo Rufino Tamayo, Mexico City; Institut de Cultura La Virreina, Barcelona. He has participated twice in the Saint-Etienne International Design Biennial, Saint-Etienne, France. Oroza has been awarded fellowships by Guggenheim Foundation, HARPO Foundation, among others.

PRINCESS @oneminuteworld

Limited artist run edition of 250 blue colored vinyl. 45 RPM for bumping beats.

ABOUT THE EDITION

@(One Minute World) is a video song cycle that features original animations and live musical performance. The music is performed live alongside the video projection.

With intentionally brief one-minute video songs, @1minworld 's primary-colored bubblegum visuals contrast the songs' content which explore the discontents of our social media age: filter bubbles, surveillance capitalism, and shortened attention spans, to name a few. Princess (Alexis Gideon and Michael O'Neill) is a queer interdisciplinary performing arts duo that uses music as the narrative basis for their conceptual, visually dynamic video operas. Their blending of genre and medium exemplifies their ethos of fluidity; once society embraces the full gradient of Identity, the richer, healthier and more beautiful the world will be. Their work often examines social and political issues, striving to understand what it means to be human in the frenetic and fragmented modern age, often through a self-reflective humorous lens. Princess has been part of art and music communities since 1999, from early DIY queer music scenes in Chicago to internationally renowned museums.

Princess has performed at 21c Museums, Andy Warhol Museum, The Bass, Bemis Center for Contemporary Arts, MCA San Diego, MIT List Visual Arts Center, MOCA Cleveland, New Museum, Wexner Center for the Arts and many other institutions.

ABOUT THE ARTIST

The American artist Alexis Gideon is a visual artist, composer and performer, best known for his innovative animated live video operas and multidisciplinary techniques. Gideon, whose career began under the mentorship of musical legend Anthony Braxton, considers music the backbone and inspiration for all his work. Critic Alex Oliver writes, “It’s hard to know whether Gideon views [his pieces] as an occasion for the music, or whether the music is the midwife of the experience. Gesamtkunstwerk is achieved.”

Combining research, literature, musical composition, painting, sculpture, installation, video, and performance, Gideon's work examines the loss of the mystical in contemporary society. Alienation, subjugation and the human condition are persistent themes in the artist's work. In 2013, the New Museum of Contemporary art paired Gideon with William Kentridge in a joint exhibition that explored spiritual and political colonialism.

Gideon has performed and exhibited throughout the world, including at Moderna Museet Stockholm, New Museum of Contemporary Art, Institute of Contemporary Art Boston, Museum of Contemporary Art Chicago, Centro de Arte Contemporáneo Málaga, Yerba Buena Center for the Arts, Vdrome, Museum of Contemporary Art Cleveland, Wexner Center for the Arts, and Time Zones Festival Italia. His work is in the collection of the Spencer Museum of Art at the University of Kansas, Lawrence, the Thomas J. Watson Library at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, NY, the Debra & Dennis Scholl Collection in Miami, FL, as well as a number of private collections.

Gideon's work has been funded by the Heinz Endowments, the Pittsburgh Foundation, Regional Arts and Culture Council of Oregon, Oudies (France), European Union (FEDER), the Languedoc-Roussillon Regional Council, Languedoc-Rousillon DRAC, and the Gard Council.

The work has been translated into French, Spanish, German, Italian and Chinese. It has been adopted into Oregon State University's Chinese Cultural Studies curriculum and selected by in the Borges Center (University of Pittsburgh) In the Arts collection. Gideon has been an art juror at the Cleveland Institute of Art, a guest artist at Carnegie Mellon University MFA Integrative Seminar, and lecturer at SUNY Stony Brook, Kawenga Digital Arts and Culture Center (Montpellier, France), Washington State University, University of New Mexico (Albuquerque), University of Oklahoma (Tulsa), and the Portland Art Museum.

Adler Guerrier

Untitled (Neither rosy nor prim; prefers the chorus to the heap of disturbance), 2023

Graphite, colored pencil, gesso, gouache, and solvent transfer on paper.

15 x 111 inches

Unique

ABOUT THE ARTIST

Adler Guerrier creates visual dialogue between a wunderkammer of materials and techniques. Guerrier improvises between form and function to nimbly subvert space and time in constructions of race, ethnicity, class, and culture. He calls upon the democratizing nature of collage and the authority of formal composition to designate to art history an axis of contemporary identity critique. Often chronicling the hybridity and juxtaposition in his immediate environs, Guerrier practices a contemporary flaneur in an impending age of post-demography.

Adler Guerrier was born in Port-au-Prince, Haiti and lives and works in Miami, FL, where he received a BFA at the New World School of the Arts. Guerrier recently had a solo exhibition at Perez Art Museum Miami, Miami, FL. He has exhibited work at Vizcaya Museum and Gardens, Miami, FL; The Bass Museum of Art, Miami, FL; Harn Museum of Art, Gainesville, FL; and The Whitney Biennial 2008. His works can be found in public collections including the Museum of Contemporary Art, North Miami, and the Studio Museum in Harlem, NY. His work has appeared in Art Forum, Art in America, The New York Times and ARTNews, among others.

Grid's World Print Portfolio, 2013

Oil and acrylic screen-print on archival paper

20 x 14 inches each

Set of five individual prints, edition of 25, signed

$500 for set of 5 unframed; $1000 for set of 5 individually framed

ABOUTTHEEDITION

This suite of editions was presented in conjunction with Grid's World collaborative installation at Locust Projects in 2013 by Alexandra Hopf, Marcos Valella, Odalis Valdivieso, Siebren Versteeg and Gabriel Vormstein—artists working in Miami, New York, and Berlin. In their exhibition at Locust Projects, the artist collective Grid's World treated each of their individual works as flexible modules, collaging them together throughout all three galleries to create a massive collaborative installation.

The result is a mosaic show-construction, using the white cube as a blank slate and drawing on a self reflecting parallel and perpendicular progression—a grid. Throughout the artists' individual practices, there is a common thread of conceptual place-making, letting the viewer drift through the image.

ABOUT THE ARTISTS

Alexandra Hopf was born in Kassel, Germany, Alexandra Hopf lives and works in Berlin. Working with video, painting and objects, Hopf reconstructs the avant-garde within her own museological approach. She creates discourse of knowledge in her work appearing from the past, yet from a contemporary polyphonic position, creating signifying systems referencing psychoanalysis, design, film, theatre and exhibition history. Her work has been presented in exhibitions, internationally and throughout Germany such as A Private Collection, Cruise & Callas, Berlin, and Vitrine gallery, London; Vertikale, Filmmuseum Frankfurt; Reflexion and Empathy, Arthena Foundation; Practices Remain, Regina Rex, New York; Magic Show, Hayward Gallery Touring Exhibition, London; In times like These, Prague Biennale; and Kunsthaus Glarus, Switzerland; and recently Grid's World at Locust Projects, Miami FL, among many others.

PepeMar

Pillow, 2017-2023
 Custom printed fabric

ABOUT THE EDITION

Show front and back.
 Referencing his 2017 immersive solo installation Man of the Night, Mar has donated this unique pillow made from custom printed fabric.

ABOUT THE ARTIST

Pepe Mar is a cognoscente of materiality at the forefront of social fluency and personal obsession. Mar excavates the ritual narratives inherent in secondhand stores, science fiction, celebrity, commercial design, and social media to create abstract and anthropomorphic barometers of contemporary culture. His rich, experiential process recalls the history of assemblage and painting. Mar heeds the call of Roland Barthes’ universal signifiers and answers with icons both appropriated and original. The artist’s work is committed to a personal and universal exploration of cultural alienation.

Pepe Mar was born in Mexico and lives and works in Miami, Florida. He received his BFA from California College of the Arts (CCA), San Francisco and received his MFA from Florida International University. The artist has completed residencies at the Skowhegan School of Painting and Sculpture (2011), the Bronx Museum International Residency Program (2013), and The Artist-in-Residence Program at The Banff Centre (2015), among others. Jillian Mayer

Homemade Laptop Case (pink), 2013

C-Print

30 x 20 inches unframed; framed

Edition of 25 + 5 AP, signed and numbered $300 unframed; $500 framed

ABOUT THE EDITION

Homemade Laptop Case (pink) was produced as part of Mayer's 2013 exhibition at Locust Projects, Precipice/PostModem. The exhibition featured sculptural and installation work satirically exploring the concept of a technological singularity, the theoretical moment in time when the boundary between human and machine no longer exists.

Precipice/PostModem builds on a body of work that began with the experimental short film #PostModem which premiered at the Sundance Film Festival in 2013 and was later featured in an independent film retrospective at MoMA in New York as part of the Carte Blanche series. The exhibition featured sculptural and installation work satirically exploring the concept of a technological singularity, the theoretical moment in time when the boundary between human and machine no longer exists. Mayer used comedy as a means to inspire introspection about technology's place as a surrogate for spirituality in our lives, and implies that it is quickly becoming much more, regardless of whether or not the predictions of futurists like Ray Kurzweil come to fruition. The various pieces of her show explored the ramifications of this impending change, from angles that range from sociological to parodic to sublime.

ABOUT THE ARTIST

Jillian Mayer is an artist and filmmaker. Through videos, sculptures, online experiences, photography, performances, and installations, Mayer explores how technology affects our lives, bodies, and identities by processing how our physical world and bodies are impacted and reshaped by our participation in a digital landscape. Mayer investigates the points of tension between our online and physical worlds and makes work that attempts to inhabit the increasingly porous boundary between the two. Mayer's artwork has a consistent thread of modeling how to subvert capital-driven modes of technological innovation.

Solo exhibitions include Bemis Center for Contemporary Arts, Omaha, Nebraska (2019), Kunst Aarhus, Aarhus, Denmark (2019), University of Buffalo Art Museum, Buffalo NY (2018), Tufts University, Boston, MA (2018); Postmasters Gallery, New York, NY (2018); Pérez Art Museum, Miami, FL (2016); LAXART, Los Angeles, CA (2016); Utah Museum of Fine Art, Salt Lake City, UT (2014); and David Castillo Gallery, Miami, FL (2011 & 2016). She has exhibited, screened films, and performed at MoMA PS1 (2017); MoMA (2013); the Museum of Contemporary Art, North Miami, FL (2013); the Bass Museum of Art, North Miami, FL (2012); among others.

She has attended residencies at Yaddo, Ucross, Vermont Studio Center, VCCA, The Studios of Key West, Atlantic Center for the Arts Master Program under Inka Essenhigh, and a year long program at the Deering Estate. Taking her to remote and historic places, they have a profound effect on her work. Most influentially she spent a month inside Everglades National Park under the AIRIE residency program in 2015. This residency solidified her desire to focus her artwork on the combination of her local environment, history and community outreach.

She has curated and staged group performances and public programming throughout her native South Florida. In conjunction with exhibitions and organizations such as AIRIE, Girls Club, and various historical entities she collaborates to bring these themes to life in the community- thru walking and bus tours of neighborhoods, cemeteries and the local environment, guest lectures, workshops, book clubs, even shadow puppet performances. These events have allowed Pettersson's work to become a true engagement with the community, dissolving boundaries, utilizing the talents of a variety of people and organizations with limited resources, and educating and delighting by innovative means.

Meredyth Sparks

Untitled, 2012

Digital print

12 x 12 inches

Edition of 30

$350 framed

ABOUT THE EDITION

Quiet and deadpan, Sparks's photographic collages/assemblages, sculptural installations and first-ever animation are fixated on the etymological origins and contemporary application of extraction which highlights the gesture of cutting and removing material from an image or an object, emphasizing the spatial relationships that unfold. Sparks enjoys exploring the zone between figuration and abstraction across a variety of subjects for which a plethora of images exists already.

Sparks had a solo exhibition at Locust Projects in 2012 titled, So I Will Let It Alone and Talk About the House. Vacant and unspecific, the mixture of fabric, texture and structure in the exhibition constructed a loose narrative uncommitted to any one location. The patterns, furniture and shrouded decorative quality of the works served as psychological indicators to her idea of extraction—which aims to pick out an intimate space at any moment and exploit the undertones. The wallpaper and linen designs enforced a mass-produced aesthetic, and the clean and subtle sensibility, especially in the collage pieces, made the slivers of photographic images of interior space poignantly effective.

ABOUT THE ARTIST

Meredyth Sparks was born in Panama City, Florida, in 1972. Sparks currently lives and works in Brooklyn, NY. She earned her B.F.A. from the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, and her M.F.A. from Hunter College. Meredyth Sparks has exhibited widely in international gallery and museum contexts, including solo gallery exhibitions at Veneklasen Werner, Berlin; Galerie Catherine Bastide, Brussels and Galerie Frank Elbaz, Paris, among others. She has been included in group exhibitions at ICA, Boston; CAPC Museum of Contemporary Art, Bordeaux; Les Recontres d'Arles Photographie, Arles; Centro Galego de Arte Contemporanea, Santiago de Compostela and The 2nd Moscow Biennial. In 2009, Monografik Editions published the artist's first monograph, with texts by Nicolas Bourriaud and Robert Hobbs.

Juana Valdes

Adrift, 2020

Kodak Silver Halide Photographic Metallic Paper

14.75 x 28 inches (image); 17 x 30 inches (paper)

Edition 25 + 2 AP, signed and numbered

$750 unframed; $950 framed

ABOUT THE EDITION

Adrift considers the similarities in how the past and the current global refugee crisis are documented and disseminated in mass media and how women and children disproportionately are impacted by loss of life and trauma." - Juana Valdes.

Adrift was produced exclusively for Locust Projects in conjunction with LatinX multidisciplinary artist Juana Valdes's 2020 exhibition Rest Ashore. The large-scale installation reexamines the Cuban migration experience over the past sixty years and how it relates to the current global refugee crisis. The work explores how the refugee crisis has been documented and disseminated in mass media using historical footage and imagery of objects lost at sea, descending into the ocean and washing ashore, referencing loss, sacrifice, and the loss of human lives.

ABOUT THE ARTIST

Juana Valdes uses printmaking, photography, sculpture, ceramics, and site-specific installations, to explore issues of race, transnationalism, gender, labor, and class. Functioning as an archive, Valdes's work analyzes and decodes experiences of migration as a person of Afro Caribbean heritage. Born in Pinar del Rio, Cuba, Valdes came to the United States in 1971. She received her BFA in Sculpture from the Parsons School of Design (1991), her MFA in Fine Arts from the School of Visual Arts (1993) and attended the Skowhegan School of Painting & Sculpture (1995). Simón Vega

Crom@crópolis, 2014

Digital print on archival paper 14 x 20.85 inches

Edition of 50

$375 unframed; $525 framed

ABOUT THE EDITION

The edition was produced in conjunction with Vega's 2014 exhibition, Sub-Tropical Social Sculptures with the structure's tropical and color-injected appearance. Vega developed a series of social/sculptural experiments that, in his words, reflect how people from very different geographical and social circumstances organically come together socially, in away that is unique to Miami.

Crom@cropolis utilizes drawings, ephemeral sculptures and installations inspired in the informal, self made architecture and vendor carts found in the streets and marginal zones of El Salvador and Central America. These works are assembled with wood, cardboard, plastic and found materials. The edition was produced in conjunction with his exhibition, Sub-Tropical Social Sculptures with the structure's tropical and color-injected appearance. This is a concept mixing the aesthetic and social experiences to create sculptural objects that are both functional and non functional.

ABOUT THE ARTIST

In his multidisciplinary art, Simón Vega examines and parodies disparities between first and second-world cultures, economies, and social experiences. He does this through various drawings, ephemeral sculptures, and installations. In the case of the latter, Vega's three-dimensional works mimic sleek, cutting-edge technological advances such as Modernist buildings or NASA space crafts. Executed in detritus—found materials collected from the beaches of El Salvador or the streets of Medellín, for example—the artist's creations closely relate to the street vendor stands and self-made houses of Central America's margins. Though steeped in irony and criticism, Vega's work nonetheless retains a sense of humor, guiding the viewer through a thought-provoking experience of art, politics, and history.

Born in San Salvador, El Salvador in 1972, Vega graduated from the University of Veracruz in Mexico with a degree in fine arts before pursuing graduate work in contemporary arts at the Complutense University in Madrid. He has exhibited extensively in Europe, the United States, and Latin America, including at the 55th Venice Biennale, the IX Havana Biennial, and the Museo del Barrio in New York. Vega lives in La Libertad, El Salvador.

Hannah Whitaker

Limonene 1, 2013

Photograph printed by hand
11 x 14 inches, unframed 19 x
16 3/4 inches, framed Edition
of 25, unsigned

$250 unframed; $350 framed

ABOUT THE EDITION

Created on occasion of Whitaker's Locust Projects exhibition of the same name and year, Limonene 1 is a print of one of the images utilized in the installation. The exhibition consisted of site-specific photographs printed on vinyl and adhered directly to the gallery walls. Using litter scavenged from Miami streets, Whitaker composed impromptu assemblages, all photographed in one week-long trip in February of 2013. She then reexposed the film using light leaks—where light makes direct contact with the film—and other experimental in-camera techniques. Whitaker, who frequently makes photographs using unpredictable methods and unwieldy materials, continues to embrace chance in Limonene. Unlike past bodies of work however, the new photographs revolve around the material specificity of one particular place—Miami.

ABOUT THE ARTIST

Hannah Whitaker, b. 1980 in Washington D.C. received a BA from Yale University in 2002 and a MFA from the International Center of Photography/Bard College, New York, NY Recent exhibitions include a solo show at Thierry Goldberg in New York and group shows at Galerie Christophe Gaillard in Paris, Higher Pictures in New York, and Rencontres d'Arles in France, where she was nominated for the Discovery Prize. She recently co-edited issue 45 of Blind Spot magazine and co-curated its accompanying exhibition, The Crystal Chain, at Invisible Exports in New York. She is also a contributing editor for Triple Canopy.

Hannah Whitaker's color photographs vary in subject matter, from female nudes to landscapes, to lunar eclipses, to close-ups of natural materials that emphasize texture over content, like marble in an ancient Greek quarry and lava from a Hawaiian volcano. The latter, depicted in Lava (2012), draws viewers in with its beautiful, glistening black surface that recalls the iridescence of black oil paint. Affirming critics' description of her work as painterly, Whitaker admits her practice has "an obvious connection to painting...with all its drips and paint-like materials." She produces some photographs in a straightforward manner, while others, such as Napoleon's Tomb (2012), involve controlled experimentation wherein she re-exposes her film using a hand-made film slide with holes in it to obscure parts of the image with light leaks.

Searching for the Miraculous (Part 2: The Journey), 2019

16 x 24 inches framed; 15 x 22.5 inches unframed

Edition of 5, accompanied by artist book

$700 framed

In July 2019 Elizabeth Withstandley took a 10 day journey on a cargo ship across the Atlantic from Newark, New Jersey to Liverpool, England and then onto Ireland. In April 1976 his boat was found capsized off the Southeast coast of Ireland.

While the artist Elizabeth Withstandley was on the boat she worked with the musician Jordan Lee from the band Mutual Benefit who was on the other side of the Atlantic in Cushendall, Northern Ireland. They communicated their experiences daily through email, creating a connected journey that served as the basis for the project.

Antonia Wright

And so with ends comes beginnings, 2021

Digital C-print

18 x 30 inches

Edition of 20 | 2AP

$850 unframed; $1050 framed

ABOUT THE EDITION

This edition was produced for Locust Projects for And so with ends comes beginnings, a video that was presented at UNTITLED ART FAIR in 2021 viewable on a floating video screen at Lummus Park Beach.

Shot when the artist was 9 months pregnant, the video is a metaphor for the dualities of ecstasy and anxiety of living in a paradise for ground-zero sea-level rise. First, one sees a pregnant body floating above the surface as it slowly sinks below the water level. Then tower cranes emerge in the frame.

These ubiquitous instruments on the South Florida urban landscape are the first objects erected on any construction site. Without a proper sustainability plan the city is being hastily developed, yet the stomach is a buoyant shelter; its round, soft shape suggests a place of safety in contrast to the rigidity of the machinery.

Bringing everything back to the body, the layered audio includes Wright's breath, an experimental jazz composition by Jason Ajemian, and sounds from labor, which are used to create an intimate, life-affirming soundscape juxtaposed with angst. The sound dimension underscores the resilience of living as the breathing continues, almost as if it is possible underwater. The video's silver and gold color palette ironically mimics the opulent surfaces of these newly built luxury condos. The global unconstrained urban development devoid of proper ecological sense of caution leads to this visual metaphor of simultaneous creation and destruction— it is an emblem of fecundity in times of erasure of the natural order.

ABOUT THE ARTIST

Antonia Wright is a Cuban-American artist born in Miami, Florida. Wright received her MFA in Poetry from The New School in New York City in 2005 as well as at the International Center of Photography for photo and video in 2008. She has exhibited in the U.S. and abroad and has been awarded artist's residencies both nationally and internationally. Exhibitions include shows at The Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden (Washington, D.C.), The Perez Art Museum (Miami), Pioneer Works (New York), The Faena Arts Center (Buenos Aires, Argentina), The Margulies Collection at the Warehouse, Vizcaya Museum and Gardens, Spinello Projects (Miami, FL), Luis de Jesus Gallery (Los Angeles, CA), San Francisco Arts Commission Galleries (SF, CA), Aeroplastics (Brussels, Belgium), The National Gallery of Art (Nassau, Bahamas), and Ping Pong (Basel, Switzerland). In April 2012, she became and founded the first artist-in-residence at the Lotus House Shelter for women and children in Overtown, Miami. She was named a CINTAS Foundation Fellowship finalist for 2019 in Visual art. She is represented by Spinello Projects in Miami and affiliated with Luis De Jesus Gallery Los Angeles. Wright's work has been presented in publications including The New York Times, Artforum's Critics' Picks, Art In America, Hyperallergic, i-D, New York Magazine, Daily News, Miami Herald, El Nuevo Herald, and The Art Newspaper. Wright had a solo show at Locust Projects titled Under the water was sand, then rocks, miles of rocks, then fire in 2016.

The background is a solid pink color. It features a decorative border consisting of several concentric white circles. Scattered around these circles are numerous white, four-pointed starburst shapes. The text is centered in the middle of the image.

Jean-Baptiste Bernadet

Untitled Vetiver, 2017

51 x 59 inches

Donated by private collector, courtesy of Board Member Karen Boyer

ABOUT THE ARTIST

An exceptional colorist, Jean-Baptiste Bernadet constructs atmospheric worlds in his paintings, where nature, sensation, and the psyche are front and center. In a carefully constructed in-between zone bounded by abstraction and landscape painting, his incandescent oranges, full, candid purples, sulfurous yellows, faded pale greens, and deep grays produce worlds where a landscape, its unique memory, and the imagination interact, directed by the eye and the mind. In Jean-Baptiste Bernadet's work, the act of looking, which is both transitory and continual, melancholic and elated, joins feeling, which is here envisioned as a series of emotions, a patchwork of romantic recollections and introspections, whirling perceptions inspired by the passage of time. In his intimate relationship to memory and his deep desire to transcend linear time, the work of Jean-Baptiste Bernadet is similar to the Proustian spirit. Ultimately, the purpose of his painting is painting itself, all the while giving viewers the freedom of projecting their own experiences onto the surface.

Born in Paris in 1978, he lives and works in Brussels, and was artist-in-residence at Triangle Studios in Brooklyn in 2012, APT Studios in Brooklyn in 2011, and Chinati Foundation, Marfa, Texas, in 2010.
