

Media Alert:

New World School of The Arts
Honors Class

@

Locust Projects

In celebration Of Earth Day

Mar Sub Laban

water

matte print, clear label tape

11 x 14"

WHEN: Saturday, April 22nd, 2023 from 1pm - 4pm

WHERE: Locust Projects 297 NE 67th Street, Miami

This Earth Day, Saturday, April 22nd, Locust Projects and the Honors class of New World School of the Arts invite the public to a special temporary exhibition on view at Locust Projects' new home in Little River from 1:00 pm to 4:00 pm.

This exhibit will be an open forum hosted by the art students of New World, where original works from the young college students will be displayed, and conversation on the subjects of environment, art, and activism will be encouraged. This artist activation is a call back to the original intentions of Earth Day invented by Senator Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin, who called the holiday a national "teach-in" in an attempt to bring awareness to environmental pollution and degradation.

The following students will be participating:

Analyce Ayala
Jose Chocce
Merly Corvo
Nila Duranza
Veronica Gort
Anakaren Gutierrez
Nathan Jefferson
Katherine Kafruni
Noah G. Keller
Mar Sub Laban
Sureily D. Marestein
Sofia Metcalf
Nikolas Olmo
Catherine Villalonga
Dayna Whitmarsh
Marianella Guinand Wulff